Boy meets girl, girl teases boy, boy looks for something to destroy he's into her, she's onto him and that's the way it's always been she'll be with you if you want her to unless she finds out that you do then somehow she won't want to be it turns around so suddenly and I'm like yeah, but she's all no and I'm all come on baby let's go and she's like I don't think so and I'm going... The search for love and happiness turns out to be a game of chess you can't move or you flip the board and you're lying in pieces on the floor I'm like um and she's all hey and I'm all come on baby let's play and she's like that's okay and I'm going... Every day I just want to say I love her madly but I do it so badly that when I do I can't get through if she even listens she's way off in the distance. Success in these relationships rests more or less on gamesmanship and these are ships that I can't board or keep in order or afford I'm like yeah, but she's all no and I'm all come on baby let's go and she's like I don't think so and I'm going I'm going I'm going.
