I know you're upset with me, but let's just call a truce, cause I don't have the energy to make up an excuse down all day and up all night, that's the way I've been, though I've heard you say that I should try to take control of my life I would try to do what you said but sometimes it's a challenge just to get out of bed and that's as good as it is ever gonna get and nothing is happening yet and everybody knows that-- please pass the prozac. Waiting for that prozac moment to arrive I'll adore that magic moment glad to be alive time to find out if it's true I think I'm in love with you now's the time but all I do is pace around the room so we do need to give it a go I've already wasted half a life-time or so if I change my mind how would I know? I need a Dr. Frank-ectomy though and hope it never grows back-- please pass the prozac. Now they're closing in everybody's yelling at me they could take a pill or two themselves there they go again staring at me swearing at me take the whole bottle too as well time to find out if it's true I think I'm all over you now's the time but all I do is pace around the room so I'm just waiting for that prozac moment to arrive, and save my life.
