She settles for ordinary without the extra n' all
She prays for love yet she never takes the fall
She has the heart but now she, now she isn't sure
Of what she wants in a guy anymore

Silly little girl, you broke his heart
Silly little girl, are you happy?
He took his life and you know why
Silly little girl, look at the sky

Buried by the thoughts that weigh her down
On an empty ship of guilt anchored to the ground
She's a lone leaf on this rotting tree
That grew so many years ago from a seed
That they called love
That they called love

Silly little girl, you broke his heart
Silly little girl, are you happy?
He took his life and you know why
Silly little girl, look at the sky

I wonder why, I wonder how you can sleep in those bed sheets
I wonder why, I wonder how you can stand on those two feet

Silly little girl, you broke his heart
Silly little girl, are you happy?
He took his life and you know why
Silly little girl, this is goodbye
