Green shade falls on everything
The sea of cascading colors
Transcend what you think you know
Then you'll find out
Maybe we can wake up in a field
Care about our lives another time
Looking for a place to make plans
Think about what we never believed in

We don't care here
We don't care
We don't care here
Throw away your problems
Let them all matter some other day

Nevermind perception
Guide yourself to where you were
Reoccurring are these instances
Seems familiar in a way
Send away for inspiration
That isn't there for now at least
Look for climates of comfort
Between the jarring revelation

We don't care here
We don't care
We don't care here
Throw away your problems
Let them all matter some other day

Underneath the diamond skies
We will listen to the trees
And follow no man in a suit
And become one with the breeze

We don't care here
We don't care
We don't care here
Throw away your problems
Let them all matter some other day
