I was born bored

I was born with a glazed look in my eye

And my mother picked me up and I let out a sigh

And she showed me out the window

And I shrugged at what I saw

I grew up bored and I'm bored still

And I sat and I yawned as I watched other people

Trying to get themselves a thrill

And I dreamed that I was dying

Then I woke up and I was dying still

Born bored

What's a boy to do?

Hold me my darling

Hold me the whole night through
