you came in you're never getting out you're gonna help me let me show you, tell you how you might be frightened that's only at times you don't know what's to happen it will when the time's right

everything will change
everything will scatter
you will pick up the pieces put the important things back together but please, don't get superstitions nothing will happen
til I make the final transition everything is not forever it's just preparations for another change you are almost ready don't get half crazed

you might seem to tremble with fear but don't get scared it's just another transition but your life is bared

the time has come you will take over live up to your promise if you believe in reincarnation I'll be back with you soon

but please, believe in reincarnation
nothing will happen

transitions, transitions,

transition
transition
