Cold steel rails in front of me, my steel city left behind.
Miles and miles of miles to go, it's another lonely night.
I see the tunnel up ahead is dark, it opens up and swallows me whole.

Can't see the light at the other end now. Sometime it's gotta show.

I see my light shining through.

Shine on.

Shine on.

I've got the time to say to my friend,

Hey friend, that this ain't no easy road,

But it's the way I must travel, even if I have to ho alone.

I've seen the dreams of a broken man, broken,
shattered and torn,

Have to stand on my own two feet, some time my day
is gonna dawn.

I see the day is coming, won't have to wait no more.

I feel the rays-a-burning, burning through my open door, shine on through,

Shine on through.

Three days, 1500 miles quickly turns into a week.

Don't know my direction and I just can't get no sleep.

This petty ego is thriving on a teenage dream, it won't be long before we

Arrive,

Down on loser's street, yeah.

I see my light shining through,

I see my light shining through,

I see my light shining through,

My light a-shining through,

See the light shine through,

Shine on.
