As summer cast its spell around us,
Her eyes glowed with the softest love;
My heart was hers to hold forever,
She was a gift sent from above.

Her love stays through the hours that linger,
Blossoms like fruit from sweetest vines;
This gift caressing from her fingers
Shows I am hers, and she is mine.

When did our love come? Will it go?
(I don't know why.)
When did our love come? Will it grow?
I promised her that I always would try.
The heavens watch us every evening,
Kissing our souls with just a sigh;
Give me your hand and your heart softly,
I know our love will never die.

The heavens watch us every evening,
Kissing our souls with just a sigh;
Give me your hand and your heart softly,
I know our love will never die.
