I will always carry
the words of your
prediction with me

Even though they harbour some grave
obscurity
They haunt me like some willows do.

And nothing has revealed itself to me
The half of the world that I can see
Is just a memory.

And I will be here
To respond so clear
to that word,
that sound,
that I have found
in me, in you,
in us....

As long as you can have the moon
let me have the dust.
Somebody comes along
you continue to rust.
Everyone will do you wrong
'til you learn how to trust,
along the way.....

If one of us should fall, should fall
If one of us should fall, should fall....

I will always carry
the wounds of your
addiction with me

Even though they
harbour some grave
obscurity
They haunt me like some willows do.

But something has revealed itself to me

The half of the world that I can see
Is falling to its knees.

And I will be here
To respond so clear
to that word,
that sound,
that I have found
in me, in you,
in us.....

As long as you can have the moon
let me have the sky.
Somebody comes along
you continue to cry.
I'll be the camera,
you, the discernible eye.
Together we can climb so high so high, but.....

If one of us should fall, should fall
If one of us should fall, should fall
carry each other
