"Bound To Happen"

I used to know you like the back of my hand Until today you held your place Now you're shifting like the sand Your chest would heave with pride if I were spoken of 'Till tonight I never knew the difference between comfort and love

Although you're sleeping right next to me
Well, it feels like you are wide awake in a distant dream leading a life that is finally free of these endless nights and countless fights that turn us into who we hate to be

This is so difficult for the both of us
I know we tried so hard, there's just no hope for us
Well it's more than a shame that we lost to this game
All my walking, talking, sleeping, breathing - nothing will ever be the same

I used to hold you like it's all that I had Now begins the falling out, we are like a passing fad Your mouth would crack a smile if I were spoken of 'Till tonight you never thought you'd lose this epic battle with love

Although you're sleeping right next to me
Well, it feels like you are wide awake in a distant dream
leading a life that is finally free
of these endless nights and countless fights that turn
us into
who we hate to be

And this is so difficult for the both of us
I know we tried so hard, there's just no hope for us
Well it's more than a shame that we lost to this game
All my walking, talking, sleeping, breathing -
nothing will ever be the same

For what it's worth, I've always admired you

I always thought that we could make it through Now look what time can do It took our masterpiece we built and broke it in two I always believed in you I always loved you

And this is so difficult for the both of us
I know we tried so hard, there's just no hope for us
Well it's more than a shame that we lost to this game
All my walking, talking, sleeping, breathing -
nothing will ever be the same
