She came into my life like a song
And filled my world with love's sweet melody
My body learned to move with her rhythm
She was a song that was written just for me
And now she's anybody's song too many men are learning her melody
And now she's anybody's song but the tear still comes around haunting me
[guitar - steel]
We loved and we sang the sweetest harmony
And life for us became a pretty symphony
And then I introduced her to the night life
To the dim lights noisy crowds and the wine
And now she's anybody's song...
Yes the tear still comes around haunting me
