(Mel Tillis)

So many times I've told myself
We're through, it's done, that's all
And I think that I convinced
My pride that it must never fall.

But even though you can't be true
I know that I can't win
'Cause it don't take long till pride is gone
And I'm in your arms again.

For just a few lonely hours
And a few sleepless nights
Too many teardrops
And the heart that won't beat right.

Too many mem'ries
And the fight that I can't win
And I'm right back in
Your arms again.

--- Instrumental ---

Too many nights I've laid awake
And prayed for day to come
With my mind made up to just give up
Leave and not return.

But a smile or two I get from you
And that old feeling begins
And it don't take long to turn me on
And I'm in your arms again.

For just a few lonely hours
And a few sleepless nights
Too many teardrops
And the heart that won't beat right.

Too many mem'ries
And the fight that I can't win

And I'm right back in
Your arms again...
