And I know, when I go jogging it could have been another crack party
All by myself locked in my room hiding scared.
And I know it's not the way it used to be when I was three
But somehow can't the world just hold the love just the same.
No body does it on there own it's not that easy
It's hard to live with yourself
And I know this punk rock world was built on dope and fairy tales
No one made it we all helped out some
And it's real the city feel stardust smell the oil spills Cramming down our throats the way we used to go
No body does it on there own it's not that easy
It's hard to live with yourself and I know
No body does it on there own it's not that easy
It's hard to live with yourself
