"Overthink And Overanalyze"

When we're laying on your dining room floor
With your baby blanket on us
I don't feel a need to pause this
And think about what it is we're missing
Because none of that matters
And I think I've found the pattern

We overthink and overanalyze
When the answer's right in front of our eyes
We won't change over night
Let's not forget who we are
And let's promise with our pinkies crossed
These things take some time

So let's forget about time existing Like it was in the beginning as if the earth stopped spinning
We care too much about things that don't concern us
We can't let these things taunt us they are only there to hurt us

We overthink and overanalyze
When the answer's right in front of our eyes
We won't change over night
Let's not forget who we are
And let's promise with our pinkies crossed
These things take some time

We've put ourselves through way too much
I just want to feel your touch
We'll get to those things when they come along
For now we know where we belong

We overthink and overanalyze
When the answer's right in front of our eyes
Let's not forget who we are
And let's promise with our pinkies crossed
These things take some time

We overthink and overanalyze
When the answer's right in front of our eyes
We won't change over night

Let's not forget who we are
And let's promise with our pinkies crossed
These things take some time
