If I only had the chance to be right I would try to get my own words in edge-wise.

In your eyes I will not ever see the light without a blatant disregard for what I am inside.

There's a hole in the dam and the people don't know that the pressure's enough to kill the village below. You got to hold back the water with me.

You can't understand these words I say.

Your small mind can't calculate it at this pace
And if you practiced at least one thing that you preached.

You might see the pearly gates that you're trying to reach.

There's a hole in the dam and the people don't know that the pressure's enough to kill the village below. You got to hold back the water with me
