Break the chain! The hesitant sun begins the slow burn away of everything we were just yesterday, and my loaded thoughts won't save me from any heartache anymore. At least I'll know the name of the one that'll shoot me down if I become another link along this chain - Another brick along these walls that we keep crashing every time. On and on I won't let myself abandon an opportunity to leave this place better than I find. Now I spend my days in shadows waiting for a sign to fill my heart again. Everybody wants a way out I'm just looking to get in - Just let me in. This cemetery lullaby playing in my head again. We find a new love everyday, a new chance for a better way, to not repeat the same mistakes, to invent another innocence. Break the chain!
