We are the light from just beneath the surface. We are the street-heart beating like a battle drum. Settle in, settle down, turning in again. Watch us dance in the world you created to hold us down and block us in. We are so much more than what you made us. Watch us as we change the world tonight. We are the army in a war we never started. We are the symptoms through the end of all this. Underground, hear the sound, this is who we are. We've got a voice and it's screaming for you to get out of our way again. Our revolution is so much more than counterfeit anger. A Revolution! Well, I mean it. I'll bleed for it. We are beyond your system. Watch it all fall. We'll watch it all fall down. Together, we'll walk along these wasted avenues, and if our day ever comes we'll make it so much more in the name of all we live for. And when our day comes we'll make it so much more in the name of all we live for.
