Right now all the walls are growing taller
And the background is dressing up in white
How'd things come to this?
If you look up from under water
You'll see yourself touching at the knee
Scratch your back until you bleed
Right now as the medicine begins to really meltdown
Let the pillow take the blame
A black laugh day in the rain
So drink down and let your fill up with water
And a sick sound ringing in your ears
But don't you say one word
Just come on over to the better side
Where we can get it wrong until we're right
