My heart's lost since you've been gone
But you're not the guilty one
I'll go back and pick another girl again
Close my eyes 'cos I know that they're all the same

At the love parade, at the love parade
At the love parade, at the love parade

We were lovers from the start
(What's the point of it, what's the point of our love?)
But since then we've grown apart
(What's the point of it, what's the point of our love?)
Nothing now can make us lovers and we know
(What's the point of it, what's the point of our love?)
So the two of us are going to see just what's on show

It takes its time passing by
And gives a chance for the loving eye
To see a face and let the body try
To get them moving side by side

We were lovers from the start
But since then we've grown apart
Nothing now can make us lovers and we know
So the two of us are going to see just what's on show

At the love parade, at the love parade

Love, love, love parade, love parade, love, love
