She looks out the window Watches the wind blow Wondering where it goes Her whole life's here, every dream and every fear But will she ever know?

That I heard her footsteps in the hall Heard her head against the wall Saw her dreams they took a fall, Is there any hope at all?

So take a little time and wonder why your life is still stuck here
Time will pass you by so you should try to figure out why you're still here

She picks herself up off the floor Wishing life had so much more Thinks she's got nowhere to go But there's a mom who cares and a dad who's always there and friends who let her know

That life is a little more than wine, or a brand new valentine or money you can blow, at least you have somewhere to go

So take a little time and wonder why your life is still
stuck here
Time will pass you by so you should try and figure out
why you're still here

You try to look away, but you can't escape it so what are you gonna do? It's all up to you

So take a little time and wonder why your life is still
stuck here
Time will pass you by so you should try and figure out
why you're still here
Why are you still here?
