Wherever you run to
I'm gonna follow you
Past the belfry and into the city
I'll find out where you are
Jump into someone's car
And bring you back home
If you run to the west coast
I'll call from my eastern side
I'll find out where you are
You know I could find a ride
And if this one thing's true
I know that I'll find you and bring you back home

And so the town was talking
So you started walking
The town was talking
So you started walking

In a perfect world
I'd be your only girl
And we wouldn't have to keep it
Just a dirty little secret

You're not where you're meant to be
That's right in front of me
'Cause you went off your own way
Because I couldn't make you stay
But I want to make it right
I'll look for you every night
And bring you back home

But I've seen the loneliest hearts in my travels
They're waiting around while this whole thing unravels
And I've seen the loneliest hearts in my travels
But I don't want that for myself

I know I've messed up
When you say you've had enough
And that you couldn't be with me
But I want to make you see
That I'll always love you dear

Let me make one thing clear
I'll bring you back home
Yes I'll always love you dear
And let me make one thing clear
I'll bring you back home
