Windy city nights,
Hen I remembered you and I,
You brought me life unlike the others before you.

When we stood on top
A parking garage at dark,
We split in two for a few years I would be under.

Will you still remember me
Like I am here before you now
And I feel the same, love

Will you always think of me like I am six feet
underground
And our world is gone, gone

I'm counting the days and nights,
The still lives who couldn't fly.
Gravity is our penalty and I am in trouble
As true friends, we will always be
At the end of our own movies
Forever is never really ever happily after.

Will you still remember me
Like I am here before you now
And I feel the same, love

Will you always think of me like I am six feet
underground
And our world is gone, gone

Tornados blow through city streets,
But I know you still care about me.
We're looking for our long lost lifelines
To weather the storms.

Will you still remember me
Like I am here before you now
And I feel the same, love

Will you always think of me like I am six feet
underground

And our world is gone, gone
