

The Young Silencers

"Like An Astronaut"

Visit "Like An Astronaut" on MotoLyrics.com

It's a rotten day!

The rain's still pouring outside filling the streets.
Under this small light I ask myself how to smile again,
today I only feel nothingness.

Like an astronaut
I'm floating through nothing.
I've lost every contact,
I know that I can't turn back anymore.

If only someone could hear my cries
and try to help me again,
make out my dim light
and hold me tight.

Like an astronaut
I'm floating through nothing.
I've lost every contact,
I know that I can't turn back anymore.

Too many merging sounds pass in front of me
without a pause (they never have enough).

I know shouting's useless,
outside the rain will not stop falling.
I know shouting's useless,
here the rain will not stop falling has it ever really stopped?

Like an astronaut
I'm floating through nothing.
I've lost every contact,
I know that I can't turn back anymore.
People in space never meet.
Oxygen is running out

Visit The Young Silencers page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.