For insight into the spiritworld I paint this mirror black In order to enhance my vision, travel to the beyond and back Slightly intoxicated, numbing the nerves of my anatomy Mindset for discovery
Like a lighthouse in the embrace of night's darkness they are Candles lit, incense ablaze serves me as earthbound guiding stars
Unreality chilling my spine, an omen inside
I stare into thee, mirror reveal to me
The scrying session begins
The darkness of the looking glass increasing in depth it seems A sacrosanct phenomena I thought only could occur in dreams
The psychomantum reflects nothing but an appearance begins
I gaze in hypnotic stare, someone is there within Inside the surface of glass, a face I cannot see Perhaps from times long passed Staring back from the blackpainted mirror, a face I recognize

Morphing now into spinning light Metamorphosis from face to vortex, a portal of some kind Projecting my mind into the spiral light, mind and mirror will now unite Becoming formless, disconnecting with the flesh Scrying infinity, body left for dormancy Falling and rising in timelessness, light before me and within Melting in illumination, around me as I spin
As I did you can also enter and see Venture beyond, rise now and follow me
Inside the surface of glass, located in this place Tri-located in now, future and past Meeting the looking glass guest, appearing again
As I become one with the spiral - Light, before me and within, around me as I spin

Enter intuition and see, override logic and follow me.
