She's the kind of girl who likes to wear her flower dresses
When she floats through the room, she knows that she impresses
As she floats on the waves of attention,
Deep down inside you know she's waiting for a song

Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a home again?
Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a
home again?
Are you ever gonna find a home?

Her feet would move to the beat of her empty heart,
Taking her from soirees in SoHo to the parties in Berlin
She always thinks that you gotta keep on moving 'Cause solid ground isn't a place she's ever been

Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a
home again?
Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a
home again?
Are you ever gonna find a home?

Are you ever gonna find a home? Are you ever gonna find a home?

Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a
home again?
Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a
home again?
Singing oh, oh, indigo girl, are you ever gonna find a
home again?

Are you ever gonna find a home?
Are you ever gonna find a home?
Are you ever gonna find a home?
