She's going out tonight
With all the friends that know what life's about

Won't do her homework today
It doesn't matter what her parents say

They like to drive around She's in the backseat doesn't make a sound

She's playing hard to get
With an unlit cigarette

And when the world grows cold
she likes to daydream for a little while

And when the world falls down
she likes to daydream for a little while

She has a lot of friends
But they don't understand

She's a smalltown girl
They are too small for here

And when the world grows cold
she likes to daydream for a little while

And when the world falls down
she likes to daydream for a little while

She could be a model if she tried
She could grow some wings and learn to fly

And when the world grows cold
she likes to daydream for a little while

And when the world falls down
she likes to daydream for a little while

In a smalltown world
she likes to daydream for a little while

When the world falls down
she likes to daydream for a little while
