For fear of loneliness
And fear of emptiness
She gives to his demands
And cracks her fragile heart

She regrets
She cries
And everyday she hopes for death

For fear of the bruises
And fear of the lies
She hides in the closet
And slowly begins to fade

She regrets
She cries
And everyday she hopes for death

For fear of his bottle
And fear of his RAGE
He beats and corrupts her
She screams for a savior
Save me
Save me
Save me

The savior is shown
Repairing the cracks
She's no longer afraid
No longer hating

She laughs she loves
And everyday she thanks for life

No longer in turmoil
She finds her happiness
