I have a hard time think'in about anything.
I keep my mind tied up I can't think of a thing.
I'm so wrapped up in the world I can't see clear.

I have a hard time dealing with those little things.
It keeps me all hung up on the trouble it brings.
It all adds up to a world that's not sincere.

Always running on overtime.
I'm goin outside, inside, upside down.
That may seem hard but that's life.

I spend all my time doing nothing at all.
I only walk where it's soft just incase I should fall.
It all adds up to a world that's full of fear.

I spend all my money on stupid things.
If I had my way I'd own everything.
There's nothing left in this world that's not for sale.
