Merle Haggard & Bonnie Owens

For years we both have lived on pride dear
And we agreed that love is gone
Why oh why do we keep trying
A house without love is not a home.

The simple things have gone forever
We wanted wealth to call our own
We slaved to gain a worthless treasure
A house without love is not a home.

No matter where our footsteps wander
I know we'll both be all alone
With the pride that came between us
A house without love is not a home.

The simple things have gone forever
We wanted wealth to call our own
We slaved to gain a worthless treasure
A house without love is not a home...
