Lyrics: Tomas Haake

Stroboscopic contortion-assault. Light bulb language translated into fits Codes of tendon-flickers I can't grasp. Focus lost as I writhe and twitch Random beats of blinding shockwaves. Erratic suns that twist my eyes Flashes pounding at my thoughts as the intrinsic pains multiply

Muscle and tissue twined with every violent lash Battered by an unrelenting shine Immobilized by the increasing pains, the procreating agonies of system breakdown

Lightwave frequency body-oscillation. Undeciphered motions pass through my flesh Bodily reverberation induced. A corporeal system lost in its waves

Bleached into their existence by tremulous epileptic strokes Blasts of irregular pulsar-radiation - Triggering the process of mind and body control

Lost to their control
A sentence - in flashes told Enticed by their calls; - Insane, divine

Torn, undone, dissolved
By incandescent gods condemned Burned. Their mark on my soul
To my inverted shadow confined

Twisted, spun. Vertebras and spinal column unaligned Joints shattered and torn apart. Spasm-rendered distortion Organic spiral. Stretched and torn into a new creation
A worldless thing, a thingless word. Lightborn malformation
