Father and mother divorced as I began the school in hamilton
We had the same problem every night with daddy's addiction Violence and drunkenness reigned his every day and made us down
I felt really distraught as he finally left our home

The time after was difficult, I felt rather unnerved

Because of my ugly appearance, they treated me like a fool
A misfit, I was derided by the girls of our school
I reached the height of my mental quandary
More and more I shied away and went my lonely way

The time of retaliation will come Fear, pain, torment
They will come Admiration, worship
They will treat me like a god

To talk with my schoolmates about girls was an abomination
Possessing a girl was my biggest sexual imagination
I had realized that this idea could never be reality Dazzled through my sexual lust I planned many different strategies I possessed no bad conscience only one aim in my eyes

The act of cruelty considered the last details in my mind
A long time to wait for the sunset and the sacrifice made me blind
She was my number one girl, young with her long fair hair
I struck her and dragged her body to the thicket where I raped her

At this moment you were my girl and my dream was reality

She saw my face, there was no other choice but to kill her Only now I had understood what I had done
I left the scene of the crime quickly and went home

I can't live with the thoughts that I killed a young girl

This was my past but I'm not proud about now Although I killed a girl, they couldn't give me a life sentence
After one year in the youth custody unit I will be free Fortunately we all live in a cracked system where you can kill
