thinking about the times we shared looking at the stars, the sky's so clear
if i could freeze time, i'd stay right here, but i can't so i'm movin' on what can we do now to kill some time i've got to go again and leave you behind and i would stare up at the same sky, but you're so far from where i lie

i hold you all night,
'til the moon turns into the sunlight
we can both make-believe,
that in the morning i don't have to leave
but we both know,
when the morning comes,
i've got to go

when the morning comes
i've got to go

another phone call to hold on to another night alone, we made it through you say you love me,
and you'll stay true, so i sit and i just hold on we're both still growing and having fun they say we can't do it and we're too young maybe they just never had what we do maybe their love was never true

i hold you all night,
but we both know,
when the morning comes,
i've got to go

but we both know,
when the morning comes,
i've got to..
when the morning comes,
i don't want to..
when the morning comes,
i've got to go
