Keep the lies up darling you're keeping all the boys interested because what really lies inside isn't worth the time

You're the prince with stained words painting pictures that don't fit scenes who cares when you had the crowd you always loved the ovations

You were always an addict for dramatics
You were always an addict
But it all fades as the curtain drops and now you're stuck back stage with every backdrop you ever created
You were always an addict

[CHORUS:]

And now you crash through stage exits running down allies that fit you but your following isn't living up to its name cause your crowd is still lost in the stage lights you left behind

Cause princess outside the theater you're hardly worth their time you're hardly worth their time
