Sweetness, please try
The summer springs to mind, said I
Most of that night now escapes me, she replied

No, don't let in
For years of curious fear derived
Every night
We'll all set aside

A bomb adhered to memories
Sweetness, don't cry
The hurtful ones were meant to die

No, don't let in
For years of curious fear derived
Every night
We'll all set aside

A fire rite you like to watch
She said
What if I said goodbye now?
What if I, not knowing why
Left you all behind on the ledge?
I replied
That I knew now
I was glad I did not push you off
That time on the ledge
And I'm still glad
I did not push you off
That time on the ledge
