Daniel broke the king's decree
Peter stepped from the ship to the sea
There was hope for Job like a cut down tree
I hope that there's such hope for me

Dust be on my mind's conceptions
And anything I thought I knew
Each word of my lips description
And on all that I compare to You

The preference of the sun was
To the south side of the farm
I planted to the north in a terra-cotta pot
Blind as I'd become, I used to wonder where you are These days I can't find where you're not

Mine's been a yard carefully surface tended
Foxes burrowed underground
Gardening so highly self-recommended
What could I have done but let you down?

The sun and the moon
I want to see both worlds as one
The sun and the moon
I want to see both worlds as one
The sun and the moon
I want to see both worlds as one

Mine's been a vivid story, dimly remembered
And by the hundredth time it's told, halfway true
Of bad behavior well engendered
What good is each good thing we think we do?

Daniel broke the king's decree
Peter stepped from the ship to the sea
There was hope for Job like a cut down tree
I hope that there's such hope for me

Find a friend and stay close and with a melting heart
Tell them whatever you're most ashamed of
Our parents have made so many mistakes
But may we forgive them and forgive ourselves

The sun and the moon
I want to see both worlds as one
The sun and the moon
I want to see both worlds as one
The sun and the moon
I want to see both worlds as one

The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes

The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
The sun and the moon are my Father's eyes
