David, is it true that fear is lavender?
How do you walk the waves so free?
Fear is an ocean of unknown proportion
It strikes me down some sleepless nights

Some sleepless nights
Some sleepless nights
Some sleepless nights

Out on the patio, I told you how long ago
I had abandoned my will
Under the circumstance, I really had no chance
The loss, the let down, the lameness haunt me still

How far we go
Along the road
Away from ourselves?

How far we go
Along the road
Away from ourselves?

We were not getting along, retreat already begun
Though we made it through the night
Time came to climb the wall
I was hoping, I would fall back onto your side

When one is hurt
And one is meek
And one is lost

Love is like that lilac wine
It makes you drunk, it makes you cry
Tears and laughter, ecstasy
Our bodies move in harmony, ohh, ohh

We walked into town to find the man we found
His wife served us rice and beans and beer
We got just what we wanted
Headed down to the ocean's mouth to make our peace again

How far we go
Along the road
To find ourselves?

How far we go
Along the road
To find ourselves? Ohh, ohh
