I tried not to speak my mind it's better locked inside but this is hard to bare Black and white we seem to be but red is all I see when you're this close to me Tell me what you say and we have given too much time
And have come too far together to let all this past us by
But as the night falls I know days will be better

I close my eyes and I know
That the sun will rise and you will not matter always
And I know that the sun will rise and you will not matter
tomorrow, tomorrow

I have glazed up to the sky and followed silver birds that fly above my head Traveled many corners and discover stories some are still left unsaid
And I've tasted many colours in the rainbow of this world
As I try unplug the progress of this changing universe
But as the night falls I know days will be brighter

I close my eyes and I know
That the sun will rise and you will not matter always
tomorrow, tomorrow

Tomorrow brings a brand new day and I will reinvent the way I look at you And if the world spins round I know that they'll be on our side
We will skate on frozen rivers to escape the hidden tides
But as the night falls I know days will be better

I close my eyes and I know
That the sun will rise and you will not matter always
tomorrow, tomorrow

So look up, don't look down

Raise your head, turn around
See the faces you know they're all looking for you
Think that you can't make a change Well you can and you will, you will

So look up, don't look down
Raise your head, turn around
See the people you know they're all looking for you
Think that you can't make a change
Well you can and you will and you will You will...

I close my eyes and I know
That the sun will rise and you will not matter always
tomorrow, tomorrow,
Tomorrow, tomorrow...
