Well someone should have warned me
Maybe someone did
I should have been listening
But what did I know
I was probably just a kid

Yeah someone should have told me
About love and how it goes
All I had was the television
My mother and father had problems of their own

I never knew the rules of engagement
I never knew there even were any rules
And neither did you

We were stumbling blind and lucky
Through an emotional mine field
Suddenly when our luck ran out
We were just stumblin'
Then we went tumblin'
down that hill

Well someone should have told you
Not to surrender to the mirror
Not to put your pretty ear down on the rail
And swear by every distant vibration that you hear

Yeah someone should have shown you babe

What it is and what it is not
I wish I could have been the one
My aim was pretty true
But I was afraid to even squeeze off a shot

I never knew the rules of engagement
I never knew there even were any rules
And neither did you

We were stumbling blind and lucky
Through an emotional mine field
Suddenly when our luck ran out

We were just stumblin'
Then we went tumblin'
down that hill

Guitar Solo

We were stumbling blind and lucky
Through an emotional mine field
Suddenly when our luck ran out
We were just stumblin'
Then we went tumblin'

We were stumbling blind and lucky
Through an emotional mine field
Suddenly when our luck ran out
We were just stumblin'
Then we went tumblin'
down that hill
