you're such a brilliant young crusader you just got out of school you've got twenty years of knowledge that you finally get to use yes you've got your valiant motives and you think you've got the tools but you'd better watch the shadows 'cause they're all watching you you'd better duck behind a wall of stone and figure your next move you've come here to heal the sick well good for you but you'd better first go home and learn the rules

It's a game alright they're playin' but it ain't like on tv nobody shakes hands when it's over and there ain't no referee and the stands are full of broken men and the field's grown up in weeds and the winners get your children yeh they do just what they please and they'll cut you for no reason 'cept they want to watch you bleed so forget everything you've heard or read or seen it's a game alright they're playin' but they're playin' it for keeps sons of the revolution

you're here to save the day but it ain't none of you business and you're only in the way
better get out while you can
'cause there's no one here that wants a helping hand once upon a time they told you love makes the world go 'round now that's getting hard to buy as you stare across the wasteland and you watch the planet die you once heard that everybody's equal but you're learning that too is a lie there's a couple thousand people that own it all, got all the rights and it's greed that makes the world go 'round and it's bound to start a fire and yes there's three billion sleeping people gonna burn and you think by now they would have got the word

but it ain't none of your business and you're only in the way
'cause there's no one here that wants a helping hand
