

Michael Card

"Scribbling In The Sane"

Visit "Scribbling In The Sane" on MotoLyrics.com

Reject the worldly lie that says
That life lies always up ahead
Let power go before control
Becomes a crust around your soul
Escape the hunger to possess
& soul-diminishing success
This world is full of narrow lives
I pray by grace your smile survives

CHORUS

For I would wander weary miles
Would welcome ridicule, my child
To simply see the sunrise of your smile
To see the light behind your eyes
The happy thought that makes you fly
Yes, I would wander weary miles
To simply see the sunrise of your smile

Now close your eyes so you can see
Your own unfinished memories
Now open them, for time is brief
& you'll be blest beyond belief
Now glance above you at the sky
There's beauty there to blind the eye
I ask all this, then wait awhile
To see the dawning of your smile

Visit Michael Card page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.