You say you've been gone, for so long
You're just not sure, which way is home
You're almost too tired, to walk
You're so worn out, from being alone
He is right there beside you
And He wants you to know
He still cares, He still wants you
For His own
His heart is, big enough to love you
Even though you turned Him away
His arms are, long enough to save you
And give you another chance
To make up for your mistakes
His grace is, more than sufficient
Even when your heart aches
Even though your to blame
His heart is, big enough to love you
So run back to Him, today
There's no reason to be afraid
You're not in His way, He understands
He knows how to forgive, and forget
Don't give up yet, You're in His hands
He's been right there beside you
And He wants you to know
He still cares, He still wants you
For His own
His heart is, big enough to love you
Even though you turned Him away
His arms are, long enough to save you
And give you another chance
To make up for your mistakes
His grace is, more than sufficient
Even when your heart aches
Even though your to blame
His heart is, big enough to love you
So run back to Him, today
He bought you back with His own blood
On Calvary
So back in His arms is where
He wants you to be
And what He longs for is to see you

Totally, completely free
His heart is, big enough to love you
Even though you turned Him away
His arms are, long enough to save you
And give you another chance
To make up for your mistakes
His grace is, more than sufficient
Even when your heart aches-acap
