The music begins and titles fade in, starring you and me

The hero is struggling to say that his lady is far away
In her prison of wishes

We love and we fight but its all day for night just a masquerade

We'll read till the red light is off then we go take our faces off

Like two clowns in a side show

Love is like to dreamers dreaming the exact same dream

Just another Technicolor romance on the screen

Love is like to dreamers dreaming the exact same dream

Just another Technicolor romance on the screen

I keep you in frame and I whisper your name till the picture fades

The feeling is already gone I don't know why I'm going on

Cant remember the ending
