Why can't the world love
There are people hurtin' other people every other day
There are broken people's wings laying all along the way
You could send someone a smile but you're too afraid
That the person you sent it to would turn and walk away
There are people that are crying from someone else's shame
They pass along that anger it causes others pain
So if you see somebody hurt, send some love their way
Then the person you sent it to will give that love away
So let the light of Love let His light shine down
Its the light of Love let His light of Love shine down
