[Music + lyrics: M. Weikath]

Once a singer sang 'bout bullshit everyone could see him fall and be sure it's been his last hit he's never been seen at all

Some dictator felt progressive and lay down in the sun but his people were aggressive they killed him with a gun

[Bridge:]
Sometimes you're wrong
by some things you have done
you see fate is too strong nothing's won
no use for a fight
if you're not acting right you'll be cut down to size
like a lie

[Chorus:]
It's the rise and fall
the prize for all
that ain't nice at all
luck is like a ball
you can't recall or care at all
so better use your brain

A little dragon could spit fire but never so for something bad he didn't know the knight's desire to throw a lance into his head

Romeo loved his Juliet their parents told them "Stop" then it all turned out peculiar he couldn't get it up

[Bridge:]
And it's all in vain

when you're living with pain reap not goods you have grown by your own feelings you like
disappear overnight
you sip up every grin
free to win

[Chorus:]

you nearly go insane

[Solo: both/Kai/Mike]

A spaceman flies the rocket that takes him to the stars thinks his wife is in his pocket but she's strolling 'round in bars

The king of Los Angeles bought himself a teddy bear and the queen became shameless she did it with a chair

[Bridge:]

like a lie

[Chorus:]
