I won't be long, I just remembered something
You should go on before the light behind you fades
Such a shame about the weather
It feels like it's never going to change

Unbreakable what's already broken
And so it goes not a word is spoken
And the knife gets twisted deeper with a grin
And it doesn't feel like anything begin to slowly fade
Such a shame about the weather
It feels like it's never going to change

So all along you wanted something
(Cross your heart and hope to die)
And all along I didn't care
I don't blame you for never being there
All together now we crumble into this

(I won't be long, I just remembered something
You should go on before the light behind you fades)

So all along you wanted something
(Cross your heart and hope to die)
And all along I didn't care
I don't blame you for never being there
All together now we crumble into this
