There's a stranger in my bed
Are you sleeping?
There's a stranger in my head
Are you there?
Pull down the shades, turn out the lights, let down my hair
I'd do anything to be there
I can see you on my pillow
I can see you in the hall
I just can't find your face
No shadow nothing at all
I walk with you
I hear you breathe, I feel you move beneath me
I look to find a sign, for something to relieve me
I can feel you sit so near me
I reach to touch and find you to be gone
Your love comes shinging through
Burning in the night
I try to hold it so tight
Now the moonlight leaves a shadow,
Where you used to lay
Left with the scent of you,
It haunts me to the day
A thought so blue
Runs my mind into a haze
I've got to find a place where you can reach me
Now I see the signs so clearley
I see the things I thought were never right
Your love comes shining through
Your love comes shining through
Your love comes shining through
Burning in the night
I try to hold so tight
Now I see the sun so clearly
I see the things I thought were never right
Your love comes shining through
Burning in the night
I try to hold so tight
Now I see the sun so clearley
I see the things I thought were never right
Your love comes shining through
Burning in the night

I try to hold it so tight
There's a stranger in my bed
