Reaching out to no man's hand
The heart would not let go
Yet all could see the tragedy
Right before their eyes

The low tuned murmur suddenly
Was cut off by a high strung scream
A frantic search for where
The tortured sound had it's lair

And though the ground was soaked in blood
And though the eyes had froze in shock
The begging sound still endured
"Someone please save me..."

Surrender all you know of life
And forgive all who died for love
What you don't feel you won't believe

Amidst the dark crowd rose despair
"Someone got to interfere
And get her out of here!"
But who would make the save?

At the last breath she could hear
The roaring silence of no one's care
And the unheard prayer to not
Be held responsible

Her face was like death of the ages
Fallen from the end of the sky
Singing 'cause there was no tomorrow
"Someone please save me..."

Surrender all you know of life
And forgive all who died for love
What you don't feel you won't believe

Surrender all you know of life
And forgive all who died for love
What you don't feel you won't believe
