So even if it's just a little bit
By step by step and on
We've gotta to keep moving in the right direction
Because we've got a long way to go
And even when sometimes we find ourselves two steps
ahead then
We've gotta to keep moving
Because we've got a long way to go
Because we've got a long time to go
So we better keep moving

We've all had the chance to laugh, to hide, to scream and cry
To look back on the past, and ask ourselves why Why the war and what's it for? And has it ever done anyone good?
How many people would go and stop it if they could?

So even if it's just a little bit
By step by step and on
We've gotta to keep moving in the right direction
Because we've got a long way to go
And even when sometimes we find ourselves two steps
ahead then
We've gotta to keep moving
Because we've got a long way to go
Because we've got a long time to go
So we better keep moving

What if we could just extend the love that we feel for our friends
Across and ocean and horizon? Then maybe there would be an end
To the violence and the bloodshed that stains the world
red
If everybody took a step then we could keep each other fed

So even if it's just a little bit
By step by step and on
We've gotta to keep moving in the right direction

And even when sometimes we find ourselves two steps
ahead then
We've gotta to keep moving
Because we've got a long way to go
Because we've got a long time to go
So we better keep moving

I bet if our gods met they'd shake each others hands and laugh
Then set out down the same road that only leads to some place warm
And think about how far we've drifted
And know that that comes While writing down what someone said in your own words
And I think about how many times those words got passed through friends
From hand to hand, across the land then handed back again
Just like the truth, when it's not put to good use
We're going blind and I can't hear what you just said Is this fate the kind that comes regardless of our actions
Or is it practice and time that leads the way?
Is it each man for himself Or helping someone else in need that takes away our pain?

So even if it's just a little bit
By step by step and on
We've gotta to keep moving in the right direction
Because we've got a long way to go
And even when sometimes we find ourselves two steps
ahead then
We've gotta to keep moving
Because we've got a long way to go
Because we've got a long time to go
So we better keep moving
