My timing's off
I know it's off
There's nothing I can do
It's how I feel
I cannot stop the way I feel
And that's the truth
I've got you on my mind a lot
It probably scares you off
The way I talk
The way it comes across
The way it feels when something moves too fast
Why can't we take it slow
At least until we know that this will last?
What do you know that I don't?
Are you alone with no hope?
I feel alone but got hope. She said
I just don't know, there might be something better yet
I'm willing to wait, instead of doing something I'll regret
I'm not content, the last one he just came and went He always said that what he said is really what he meant
But then he left
I thought that everything was set
Set in stone, so I guess that even stones get old
And go where others go
They wash away in the waves
Or they roll to the bottom of the ocean floor

I'm reaching out
And as I reach sometimes the words come out
Just like the way that something tumbles to the ground
I either talk or tend to think these thoughts too loud
But they're coming out
No matter what you think they're coming out

I've gone away, I go away, we've got to go or fade
It's better to burn out than ever to go and fade away
It's nice to stay
To find a place to call your home
It's good to roam
Whether together or whether alone

It's good to reach
To see how far that you can reach
Instead of wait
I've got to go and see
It's good to dream
We've got to dream just like we think
And hopefully we can find ourselves a little peace

I'm reaching out
And as I reach sometimes the words come out
Just like the way that something tumbles to the ground
I either talk or tend to think these thoughts too loud
But they're coming out
No matter what you think they're coming out
