"Seen the Doctor"

I loved a girl once beyond compare
She saw inside me
and gave me air
She was assisting
my surgery
My heart was opened as she put a mask on me
I'm breathing
but it's become a chore
"Now that you've seen the doctor
don't call me anymore"

I was impatient
I was not in full arrest and the symptoms were induced by something I could not digest
She'd said a mouthful
I'd swallowed whole
My heart starts beating
a capriole,
a murmur,
too different to ignore
"Now that you've seen the doctor
don't call me anymore"

I underwent
and it smelled
of a wild goose chase
Then I saw your face
upside down
He comes in creeping
He is a creep
a samurai
It's not fair peeking (that is a lie)
Mermaid on Pico
lifts her fin,
demands a towel
And thinking of you
is not avowal
And over

and over it I pour
"Now that you've seen the doctor
don't call me anymore"

I'm breathing
but it's become a chore
Now that I've seen the doctor You're just a fucking bore like Dorothy Lamour dolloed up in Singapore to meet the Commodores
